WAIT WHUUT?

It's sabotage!

This week a member of the U.S. speed skating team admitted to sabotaging a rival skater's skates in a championship event last year in Poland. The Olympic gold medalist, Simon Cho, said one of his coaches repeatedly pressured him into bending the blades on the skates of star Canadian speed-skater Oliver Jean while the two teams were sharing a locker room at the event. Cho personally apologized and the coach, Jae Su Chun, has been put on administrative leave.

Borat takes on 'The Lesbian'

Remember the Chinese billionaire we told you about last week who tried to auction off his lesbian daughter? Well, now he is going to be the main character in a movie starring Sacha Baron Cohen. Cohen agreed to a deal with Paramount to develop 'The Lesbian,' a parody of Cecil Chao, the Hong Kong billionaire who publicly offered a $65 million bounty to any man who could win the heart of his lesbian daughter. Cohen is expected to play Chao.

No mercy for the dead

A New York woman is being hounded for money to fix an NYPD vehicle after her son put a dent in it with his head. Police ran the man down last week after they caught him trying to steal paver stones in a Brooklyn housing project. After being hit by the NYPD cruiser, the man slipped into a six day coma and never woke up. The city is asking for $710 to repair the car.

Hobo Nick finally made it!

This man, calling himself 'Hobo Nick,' is a real-life Forrest Gump. The 25 year old electrician had a comfortable life, but decided to walk across the United States from Jacksonville, Florida to Huntington Beach, California because he lacked a higher purpose. After 178 days and over 2,500 miles Nick made it and was greeted by his friends and family.

CCU Politicker 2012 Debate Night...

Cherry-Picking the Facts

Last Wednesday night President Obama and former Massachusetts governor Mitt Romney came face-to-face for the first presidential debate of the 2012 election.

Romney stole the show when it came to his energy and enthusiasm as he aggressively laid out the specifics of some of his plans as well as a laundry list of statistics criticizing the President's administration.

In typical Obama fashion, the Hawaiian native remained calm cool and collected, unwaveringly trying to avoid further criticism for being "arrogant." His performance was almost too cool, however, for someone running a campaign as fierce and important as this.

Despite the anticipation of a presidential slugfest, there was no mention of Bain Capital, flip-flopping or the infamous 47 percent comment. Instead, the American people were thrown a slew of facts and statistics with both candidates claiming to be telling the truth.

Upon further examination of their statements, fact checkers found that both candidates had done their share of exaggerating and cherry-picking the details.

According to the fact checkers at PolitiFact.com, Romney exaggerated on a number of topics including some of the numbers regarding the federal deficit and the Affordable Care Act.

Romney was given a rating of "False" on the Truth-O-Meter for stating that, "Right now, the (Congressional Budget Office) says up to 20 million people will lose their insurance as Obamacare goes into effect next year."

The fact checkers at PolitiFact.com rate this statement "False" because 20 million Americans will actually be voluntarily dropping their coverage in search of a better plan rather than involuntarily dropping their current coverage, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

President Obama was given a rating of "Half True" on his statement regarding his $4 trillion deficit reduction plan.

"According to independent analysts, that's true only if you include the spending cuts that took place last year. It is not necessary to resolve that debate to assess the president's claim. Obama cherry-picks the elements from the commission report that gave rise to the $4 trillion goal," according to the website.

Letter: Eat healthy at CINO:-)

Coastal students eating better?

It could be easily argued that all college students have a large appetite. Moving from home to college can call for a serious change in meal routine. Many students have classes with a short amount of time in between, and want to avoid weight gain from not having home cooked meals every night. Students need a fast, healthy option when it comes to eating at Coastal Carolina University.

I agree that many students are getting satisfaction out of the changes to CINO Grille, because it is providing easy and nutritious options. Not only that, but CINO has installed kiosks to make the ordering process quicker. With the touchscreen machine, you can pick between many meals, and pay, reducing the lines at checkout. The kiosks will help significantly for hungry students who have limited time to get back to a class. I also think it is beneficial to students that CINO now has a milkshake machine that provides smoothies as a better alternative.

As a freshman at Coastal, I have had to make many adjustments when it comes to my eating routine. In between classes, I go into CINO and purchase a California roll sushi tray, and a strawberry banana smoothie as a fast, healthy option. After ordering at the kiosk, I can leave once my food is prepared, and enjoy my meal. I am very excited for Subway to become a part of CINO Grille, so I can have a healthier sandwich selection.

Being a student on campus, it can get hard to find time to eat, especially something that isn't fast food. No one wants to miss out on great food, just because they don't have the time. But no worries, because now that CINO is adding many features to make the dining and food services more enjoyable, students won't have to go without tasty, healthy meals.

A Legend in concert...

Coastal Theatre student is Lady Gaga

Coastal BFA Musical Theatre student is in Hawaii starring as a Lady Gaga tribute artist for Legends In Concert, the number one tribute artist show in the world.

Jackie Wiatrowski is currently performing 6 days a week as Lady Gaga in Waikiki through December.

Legends In Concert has venues in Hawaii, Las Vegas, Atlantic City, Foxwoods, Branson, and Myrtle Beach. Wiatrowski started in Myrtle Beach with a back up singer/dancer position. Then, she auditioned only a month later, and was sent to Waikiki to be Lady Gaga.

"I had performed as Lady Gaga before working for Legends, but on a much smaller scale. This has been the opportunity of a lifetime," Wiatrowski said.

She has a show everyday at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. In addition, Wiatrowski says she takes photos with guests before the show one day a week.

These are sold after the show when all of the acts come out for "meet and greet" where they sign autographs. She also does promos throughout the week where she will perform one or two songs.

"I am constantly doing research and learning ways to improve my performance, buying new wigs and having new costumes designed, and finally enjoying the beautiful Waikiki beach!" says Wiatrowski. She finds herself enjoy the culture in Hawaii, where the people, food, and landscaping are among her favorites.

She is still an active part of Coastal Carolina University's theatre department. This year, Wiatrowski will be starring in "Pippin," and in fall semester of 2011, she starred as Reno Sweeney in CCU's production of "Anything Goes."

"Even in her classwork, Jackie is already thinking as a professional, an artist," says Gwendolyn Schwinke, Assistant Professor of voice and acting. "She doesn't wait to be told exactly what to do, but jumps in with ideas and action. And then she willingly seeks feedback and suggestions for improvement. That ability to collaborate supports Jackie's intelligence and her talent, and makes her someone that employers in our field will want to hire."

Upon graduation, Wiatrowski is set on continuing her career with the connections she's made so far.

"I still have all of my doors open for after I graduate," says Wiatrowski. "I will be able to perform anywhere in the world as Lady Gaga, go to New York to strive for Broadway, or work on developing my own music as a recording artist. I love this business, and can see myself working in many facets of it."

Wiatrowski comes from a musical family where she began dancing and singing at age 4 and piano since age seven.

Her mother is a professional accompanist who, according to Wiatrowski, was a large asset to her training.

"I remember teaching myself 'Paparazzi' on the piano, and at the time Lady Gaga was still new to the music scene," says Wiatrowski. "I guess a year later (and many hours of dedicated practice) I can say I've come full circle."

Relay for Life

Fundraiser to benefit American Cancer Society

Coastal Carolina's Relay for Life 2013 will take place on April 5th starting at 7:00 p.m. Although the event is far away it's not too early to start thinking of putting together a team and fundraising ideas. Relay for Life is an organized, overnight community fundraising walk. All night long participants take turns walking laps around the track to benefit the American Cancer Society. Relay has grown into a worldwide phenomenon, raising over $4 billion for cancer research.

Coastal Carolina will host a "Relay for Life Kick-Off" on Monday, Oct. 8 at 7 p.m. in the Johnson Auditorium. Students, faculty and staff are encouraged to attend the meeting to gain knowledge of the event if it is their first time relaying. If you're already an avid participant in Relay for Life, this is a good event to recruit people to join your team and brainstorm ideas on how to improve the event from last year. Relay for Life enthusiast, Jimmy Marino, has used Facebook as a way to involve his friends in the donation process.

"Hello Facebook. I am letting you know

I will shave my face one more time in the coming days, and will then not shave until I raise $2,000 for CCU Relay For Life." Along with the post Marino attached a link to donate, labeling it: "Help me find a cure...and shave my face. Donate Today."

For more information on Coastal Carolina's Relay for Life you can like them on Facebook or visit www.RelayForLife.org/CCUSC to join a team or donate.

Loco for Latin

CCU welcomes unique yet traditional style of international music

Courtesy: Sajaso

Coastal Carolina welcomed the salsa, jazz and soul band "Sajaso" last Wednesday night at the Johnson Auditorium in the celebration of National Hispanic Heritage Month.

Foot tapping, head nodding and dancing were just a few things going on at the Johnson auditorium while "Sajaso" played their mix of original and classic salsa tunes. With a blend of multitalented and experienced musicians, the band filled the room with an authentic Latin vibe that captured the essence of what the Hispanic heritage series is all about.

Member of the band Billy Marrero said, "The music is contagious. Everybody gets up and dances and has a good time. I love it."

"Sajaso" was formed by Ramon "Chino" Casiano in Raleigh, NC. Ramon was born in Puerto Rico and grew up in New Jersey where he gained a passion for local salsa music. After he moved to Raleigh he created "Sajaso" in 2005. Him and his band are full time and part-time musicians that have been playing across the Carolinas for almost 7 years, including 4 visits to Coastal Carolina.

"I'm glad Coastal has a Latin community. There is a bunch of different kinds of people here like Puerto Ricans, Cubans and other Latin backgrounds and a lot of colleges don't have that kind of diversity," said Ramon.

"Take Back The Night" - Stop sexual assault!

Coastal students light up the night

Students marched across Coastal Carolina's campus Tuesday night in honor of Sexual Assault Awareness Week. The event was sponsored by Counseling Services and was titled, "Take Back the Night". Students marched to spread the word about sexual assault, a serious issue on college campuses across the country.

"I hope that everybody realizes that sexual assault is wrong and hopefully we will come together and prevent it from happening," said Sophomore Brandi Lewis. Melissa Turbeville and freshman Carly Barreno had a similar take on the event. "I think that it is important to spread awareness about sexual assault and this is a great way to inform people about the severity of the situation," Turbeville said, "I'm also taking a Women and Gender's Course and we discussed sexual assault and we just wanted to do something about it instead of just complaining about it."

"I just wanted to spread the word out and let the victims of sexual assault know that they are not alone," Barreno said. Some students have been directly effected by sexual assault, so the event Tuesday night hit a little bit closer to home.

"I'm doing the march because I know several people that have been sexually assaulted and my group and I are doing it for our group activism project for our Women and Gender's class," said Senior Adrian Harrell. Male students participated in the march, as well, to help show support for women who are victims of violence and sexual assault, in hopes of that more people will become educated on the issue and come up with ways to solve it.

"I hope people will learn the importance of this issue and spread the word about it," Shawn Sayre.

Soothing Sounds: Musical Therapy Works

Although humans cannot physically see music, we most definitely feel it. The idea that music triggers different moods and emotions in ourselves has been confirmed by composers, poets, playwrights and even philosophers. Plato said, "Music is a moral law. It gives soul to the universe, wings to the mind, flight to the imagination, and life to everything."

According to an article by Gordon C. Bruner II, music plays a bigger role in our lives other than to entertain us on the car ride home from work or in a crowded elevator. He says, "Music has long been considered an efficient and effective means for triggering moods and communicating non-verbally."

In a study done by the American Academy of Pediatrics, more college students reported feeling happier, more relaxed, more optimistic and friendlier when listening to pop, rock, and classical, than when they listen to grunge.

"I think the greatest thing about music is its ability to change someone's mood, provoke thoughts and feelings, and be relatable to what different people are going through," said musician Marisa Duane, a sophomore at Berklee College of Music in Boston, Massachusetts.

Different professions use music to influence the moods of their customers or employees. Supermarkets usually play soft music to keep customers comfortable, while military bands play music to build confidence and courage.

Even for doctors and dentists, music is a helpful tool in the office. Music can reduce stress and anxieties, often helping patients cope with the procedures that they endure. According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, "music has proven useful in helping patients with serious medical illnesses such as cancer, burns, and multiple sclerosis who are also depressed."

Music Therapy is an up and coming profession that uses music to promote wellness, manage stress, alleviate pain, express feelings, enhance memory, improve communication and promote physical rehabilitation.

Coastal Carolina, senior Lina Leonard said, "Music absolutely affects my mood. When I am at the gym I usually listen to the angriest music I can find to motivate me." From helping to learn the ABC's, to building confidence, music has many useful purposes. Different music tugs on our emotions, brings back memories and evokes feelings in us that we don't even realize we have.

Coastal Today' celebrates 500th episode...

'Coastal Today' celebrates 500th episode, Coastal Today, Coastal Carolina University's flagship television series, celebrates a milestone by airing its 500th episode. The show also had its debut on network television Sunday, Oct. 7.

This new presence on mainstream television provides the opportunity for host Robin Edwards Russell to tell the stories of CCU students, alumni, faculty and staff every Sunday morning at 11 a.m. on Fox 43 and at 12:30 p.m. on WPDE news channel 15. A celebration for the milestone was held in the "Coastal Today" studio on Monday, Oct. 1, during the taping of shows 500 and 501. Crew members, as well as CCU faculty, staff and friends enjoyed refreshments as they reminisced on the show that has been on-air since January 2001. The theme of the 500th episode, Chanticleers come home, features CCU grads who work at Coastal.

"It really was a group effort involved in the planning of the 500th episode," said Martha Hunn, executive producer of Coastal Today. "Along with Alumni Affairs, we had assistance from student affairs, marketing and the team at media services."

'Coastal Today' is a 30-minute broadcast that highlights the happenings of members of the CCU family, both past and present. Previous episodes have featured CCU alumna, 2012 Summer Olympic competitor Amber Campbell, and 2012 American Idol competitor and CCU alumna Elise Testone. Not all episodes take place in the studio, located inside Hampton Hall. A recent on-location episode from the new HTC Center, where the head coaches of various CCU teams along with an athlete from the team were interviewed, gave the public a first look at the building.

Other segments include Chauncey's Tips, The Chanticleer Roundup, Coastal Stars: Where are they now?, a highlight of former students who have become successful in their chosen field and Going Places, hosted by Hunn. Going Places is a look at some of the graduates of CCU who have also moved on outstanding and exciting careers.

Laura Brajer, CCU SGA President from 2007-2008, was highlighted on episode #497, as the person credited for going before the Coastal Board of Trustees and proposing the idea for the HTC Student Recreation and Convocation Center.

...debuts on network television

Hunn, a 25-year veteran of television broadcast news, has been involved with 150 of the 500 episodes. As executive producer, her responsibilities range from choosing topics for the show, to writing the scripts. She also coordinates when and which guest will appear on the show, as well as where to shoot segments outside of the studio. "We get to tell some awesome stories," says Hunn.

One of the more memorable stories Hunn recalls was an episode filmed at Waties Island. Located just north of Cherry Grove Beach, Waties Island is a natural resting place for loggerhead turtles, the S.C. state reptile.

The late Anne Tilghman Boyce donated about one-third of the more than two-mile long island to the Coastal Education Foundation, which uses the island for classes, laboratories and independent research, conducted by CCU students and faculty. "We did two shows at Waties Island featuring interviews with faculty, staff and students of hands-on research and learning opportunities," said Hunn.

The move to network television is something the staff at 'Coastal Today' has been anticipating for a while.

"Network television is a challenge, but we are always eyeing how to get better," said Hunn. "We already had in place a new set and new graphics to prepare for the higher-level of production associated with network television."

Now that the milestone of 500 episodes has been reached, it's on to producing the next 500, but Hunn isn't worried.

"There is always good news to tell at CCU" she said.

In addition to the new airtime on WPDE and WFXB, the 500th episode of "Coastal Today" airs on HTC channel 12 daily at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m and on TWC channel 5 on Saturdays at 9:30 p.m. and Sundays at 7:30 p.m.

Administration asks teachers to report missing students

Residents Assistants are being sent to dorm rooms to check on students who are not attending classes not to discipline them, but to help them if there is a personal problem keeping them from class.

According to Provost and Senior Vice President of Academic and Student Affairs, Dr. Robert Sheehan, professors are now required to notify University Housing when students in 100 and 200 level courses miss more than two classes without an excused absence.

"This is all about trying to increase the retention of our students," Sheehan said. "There is literature that suggests that within the first 50 days or so of school, students make a decision as to whether or not they are going to stay or not come back the next year."

According to Sheehan, if a student is going to class within the first few weeks of the semester can be an indicator as to whether they may or may not return to school the following semester or academic year. It is also an indicator for how likely it is the student will succeed.

"We ask, we don't require professors but we ask that if a student misses two classes in a row that they will call Res. Life and Res. Life, David Bench, will call the student's advisor or to the RA and will try to follow up on that," Sheehan said.

The administration came to the conclusion that one of the main reasons new students leave Coastal after only attending for a semester or two, could be contributed to problems in their personal lives. Student Affairs and Student Housing are teaming up with professors to help students through these issues.

"We just want to show students that we care. We hear back many times from students that they were pleased that we're interested enough to check on them," Sheehan said. "It's not intended to be an imputative measure, it's not intended to be squealing."

The new measures have been put in place to create a relationship between students, the school, and parents. As a result, a column has been added to midterm grades of 100 and 200 level courses that show the student's attendance grade.

"I often times say to parents, 'You know you're paying the tuition here and you have the right to ask your son or daughter to sit down with them and see those grades'," Sheehan said.

"A part of what they pay for is a partnership between (students) and the school," said Director of University Housing, Steven Harrison. "You have to participate in order to join our community of learners."

Harrison assists in monitoring these problems as well as helping the missing students through whatever problems they may be having to increase their chances of being successful while attending Coastal.

"Just because you're an adult does not mean we're going to let you make a bad decision by not going to class," Harrison said.

Some faculty members believe this new approach is an important measure taken to ensure student success and safety.

"I send out emails to students and advisors everyday," said professor of Communication, Dr. Deborah Breede. "We have a very different student population here compared to most schools. We have a lot of children or students under 18 attending our institution."

Dr. Breede believes taking roll in class does a lot more than give students grades or make sure that they physically come to class.

"By not taking attendance, you are showing your students that you do not care about whether or not they come to class," she said. "Think about what kind of message it sends to a student when you say that you don't care."

Volleyball

Horvath Named Big South Player of the Week

On Oct. 1, freshman outside hitter Gabriella Horvath was named the Choice Hotels Big South Volleyball player of the Week.

Horvath was the first Chanticleer volleyball player to be named player of the week since October 2009. She led the way on two 3-2 Chanticleer road wins against High Point and Campbell, which moved Coastal into first in the Big South.

During her award winning week, Horvath had 39 kills and a .333 hitting percentage.

In Coastal's first game after Horvath was named player of the week, she led CCU with 18 kills, nine digs and four block assists in a Chanticleer loss.

Horvath concluded her week with a double-double (16 kills and 10 digs) in a Chanticleer loss to Charleston Southern University.

Horvath and the Coastal Carolina women's volleyball team return to The HTC Center Friday, Oct. 12 for a matchup against Big South foe Radford.

Women's Soccer

Lady Chants fall to First-Place Radford

The Coastal Carolina women's soccer team took on the first place Radford Highlanders Thursday at Cupp Stadium.

On a two game hot streak, the Chanticleers came in to the game with their heads held high, looking to punish the 4-0 Highlanders. However, Radford was on a streak of their own, winning their past four games before playing the Chants.

Coastal Carolina was able to keep the game at 0-0 going into halftime, but that would not last. Two minutes into the second half, Julie Ruh'e put Radford on the board with the first goal of the game.

The Chants fired back with four straight shots, but failed to hit the back of the net. In the 80th minute of the match, Radford's Kara Nay was able to add some cushion to their lead to make it 2-0 and seal the win.

The Chants currently stand at 5-7 overall, and 2-3 in Big South Conference play. They look to bounce back Saturday against VMI to end a three game road trip.

Letter: Sports opinion

Students want to watch CCU sports

While reading the latest issue of the Chanticleer I saw an article about the football game and it made me think of what happened this past weekend.

It's a real hassle when you want to watch your schools football team play the biggest football game of the year but you can't because it is not televised or being streamed live. It's not just the football games that we can't watch it is most of the sports teams here at CCU.

I feel as if Coastal should make a camera club that follows a sports team or a few of Coastal's teams that can stream games live on the sports website.

It is obvious that you can't see every game your college athletics teams play, but you would think you'd be able to see a big football game. Coastal does not have live streaming on most to all the away games. Also, there is no photography club. Photography is an interest among young adults, and adding another club would be good for CCU.

There is nothing worse than when you and your buddies have nothing to do and you want to watch the big game but it is not being recorded. I would know, because it happened to me this weekend. It was a spontaneous decision to try and watch the Coastal football game but when we got to the sports page we were all very disappointed. We got to thinking and figured that we couldn't be the only ones that wanted to watch the game that night, and even past students or upperclassman in other years most likely went through the same troubles.

The University and athletic programs should work together to make it possible to feed the away games live. Also, it would give the players a sense of comfort knowing that their peers can watch the game online. I feel like it is only fair that we get to see the athletes' hard work pay off on the road.

Coastal Men's soccer team keeps on rolling

Senior Ashton Bennett delivered again Saturday, netting his sixth and seventh goals of the season to lead Coastal to a 3-0 win over Big South opponent UNC Asheville.

It took Coastal just over a minute and a half to score the first goal of the game off a Justin Portillo corner kick, earning Justin his first goal this season.

Coastal took the majority of the shots in the first half but was unable to capitalize on any of its opportunities until the second half. In the 73rd minute Senior striker Ashton Bennett was able to head the ball into the net for the Chants second goal of the game. In the 82nd minute of play, Ashton Bennett recorded his second goal of the game; the thirtieth of his Coastal Carolina Soccer Career.

The Chanticleers defense remained scrappy and stood firm all game, not allowing the Bulldogs to score at all and only allowing them to threaten to score once the entire game. The Chants held the Bulldogs to only 3 total shots on goal all game long. The Mens Soccer Team will be heading to Campbell University Wednesday October 10 to take on the Fighting Camels.

EXTRAS

College Cuisine recipe Cheddar bay biscuits

DO IT...

What you'll need:

- 2 cups bisquick
- 2/3 cup water
- Some shredded cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup butter
- Some garlic powder, parsley, and onion powder, and maybe some salt and pepper

Directions:

- Mix bisquick, water, and cheese together in a bowl. Use lots of cheese.
- Scoop it out into balls onto a cookie sheet and bake them for like 12 minutes. Use a spoon to get them out, that dough is sticky.
- While that cooks, mix together the butter and spices in a bowl.
- Put the butter in the microwave and melt it all together; like 30 seconds.
- When the biscuits are done put them on a plate and pour the butter concoction on top.
- Eat those things and never go to Red Lobster again.
- *For extra deliciousness chop up some bacon and add it to the mix.

Book - Lords of Discipline - Pat Conroy

Band - U2 - "Hands down"

Food - Seafood, probably. I like the 'social aspect' of it, like eating a bunch of oysters at a big roast, or picking crabs and having great conversation.

Quote - "I feel more like I do now than I did when I got here." Not sure who said it but my grandfather says it all the time.

When you are not teaching what are you doing?

Spending time with my wife and baby daughter.
Or sleeping.

What is your greatest accomplishment?

I still can't believe I have a daughter. She's a month old. My marriage is pretty special, too. I picked a good one.

Who is your Hero and why?

My father. He always stands for what's right, and isn't afraid to stand alone. Seriously.

Words of wisdom for students:

Enjoy yourselves, and take school seriously. Believe me, it doesn't get any easier than it is for you right now.

THIS WEEK'S Top 5

Things annoying us

1) Twitter During the Debate:

So the debate was on Wednesday and it gave everybody something to tweet about. Want to know what is up with Justin Bieber or what the Kardashians are up to? Well, that's too bad because apparently watching the debate makes you a political activist these days. After checking my news feed, I hope no one I've seen tweet decides to vote.

2) Weight Gain: Being in college is hard on your body. Wouldn't it be nice if you could eat all the soft serve from Hick's and binge drink on the weekends and still not gain the freshman fifty? Too bad. Just because that sloppy joe was amazing doesn't mean you should have seconds.

3) Roommates: Oh, you were going to finish that? My bad! Eaten food, screaming at video games, leaving strange stains on the couch; some roommates are the worst. And to think, this was the person who thought the two of you were going to be best friends all four years and you hate them already.

4) People Complaining about Coastal's Parking:

Coastal's Parking: You mean parking is an issue on campus. Who knew? We get it already. Maybe instead of complaining about how you had to travel from lot to lot to find a spot you should leave your house five minutes earlier and make it to class on time.

5) Proactiv Commercials:

Interested in Proactiv? No? Oh, well, here's a five minute commercial anyway. After listening to Katy Perry discuss how she had to rise above difficult acne to be who she is today, you forget what you are watching and start wondering why paid programming started at 2 in the afternoon.

The Final (2010)

In The Final a group of bullied high school students use a costume party to get revenge on the classmates who tormented them throughout their high school careers. Partnering up with another group of teenage outcasts, the rejects drug all the popular kids at a rural costume party where they proceed to torture them so that their pain may be shared. As the night goes on the alliance of bullied high school students begins to crumble and they begin questioning themselves. This wasn't your typical nerd revenge movie. Although the acting was far from great and the gore affects could be compared to that of a high school production of Julius Caesar, the message of anti-bullying rings clear and leaves you taking into consideration how you treat people.

Tucker & Dale vs. Evil (2010)

In this horror/comedy hybrid Tucker and Dale travel out to their cabin for some quality guy time. On their vacation the two cross paths with a group of paranoid college kids who are convinced the two simpletons are serial killers. Hilarity ensues as a series of accidental deaths twists a simple camping trip into a horror fest.

Conception (2011)

This, by far, was the most bizarre romantic comedy I had ever seen. Conception follows nine couples on the night that they conceive their child. This film was very original and covered a wide range of types of loves; from high school students, to one night stands, to a same-sex couple. Perhaps the biggest draw to the film was the cast, peppered with slightly known actors like Alan Tudyk (Suburgatory), Julie Bowen and Sarah Hyland (Modern Family), and Gregory Smith (Rookie Blue).

Music Review

Lupe Fiasco - Food & Liquor II

Another hit record, Lupe does it again. His long awaited 'Great American Rap Album' dropped last week and landed at number five on the Billboard 200 albums chart.

Expect more of the same meaningful lyrics and social commentary Lupe always delivers in an industry dominated by pop rappers and fake thugs.

You won't find many forced rhymes about cars and gold chains, though there are a few, but you will find some scathing critiques of modern day America. And by some I mean a lot.

This album is like one long rant about government failures and societal problems, but I can't say it's not necessary in a music genre that's become increasingly dumbed down and commercialized over the past decade.

Lupe kicks off the album with a poem by his sister Ayesha called 'Ayesha Says,' a state-of-the-hood address of sorts, where she describes the view from a street corner and the plight of people stuck in the inner-city. It's a good precursor to the topics Lupe talks about throughout the album.

The highlight of the album is no doubt 'Around my way,' which uses the same beat as C.L. Smooth's "They reminisce over you." If you ever played NBA Street Vol. 2, you can't not love this song. It sounds just like the original, but with Lupe's added flair. 'Form follows function' is another favorite. The saxophone samples and simple drum beats compliment Lupe's poetic flow perfectly, and it sounds almost effortless the way he kills this beat.

If you think Lil Wayne is the greatest rapper alive this album might not be for you, but if you like real hip hop with meaning and soul, this album is a must grab.

Horoscope

For Oct. 7 - Oct. 13, 2012

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Endeavors you originate or direct have better-than-average chances of producing the rewards you envision. Let others have a hand in things if they so desire, but don't share the catbird seat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- There is no reason whatsoever why you can't chalk up some solid numbers in the profit column. Give your most significant financial interest the time it deserves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Rather than trying to sway an entire group to your way of thinking, isolate its key members and sell them on your plans. Once convinced, they'll be more effective when pitching to the others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- If you need someone with special talent to help you with a pet project, now is the time to seek out this person's help. A positive response could evaporate if you wait too long.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Pleasant circumstances could come out of involvements that are business-oriented. A serious meeting could turn out to be a very enjoyable experience.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- Under the right circumstances, a significant financial matter could develop. If you play your cards right, you could come out ahead.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- This could be an exceptionally harmonious day in all your affairs, but especially so in your partnership arrangements. Strike while the iron is hot.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Don't leave any stones unturned in your search for ways to make or save money. This is an especially fortunate time for your financial and business and dealings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Your ability to knit together important bits and pieces of information is exceptional. Don't hesitate to use it abundantly when gauging the significance of things.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Use your own smarts instead of listening to the advice of others regarding the way a critical matter should be handled. Lady Luck is looking to be on your side.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- A friend who is apt to think on a grand scale will inspire you to do likewise. Once you decide to do so, don't put any limitations on your hopes and expectations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- Your material affairs are trending quite favorably. Revisit past failed plans to make some money -- they could work if tried again.
